

The Pluto Observer

Watchdog to the Solar System

Earth Edition

July 2006

New Israeli Settlement Found

Last month's discovery of eight previously unknown new species in central Israel raises many questions among known species in the rest of the solar system. Among them is the question of the time frame for the inevitable labeling and separation of each species, living or dead, and the religious or non-religious reasoning behind it. We on Pluto wonder if the scientists who discovered this previously unknown ecosystem, heretofore hidden from the outside world, will fully understand that it functioned as nature intended and is in no immediate need of being divided by hidden theosophical agendas and forced into opposing military camps.

Somalia New Vietnam?

The question is already being asked on Earth if Somalia is going to be the next Vietnam for the U.S. We Plutonians don't need our giant orbiting telescope out near the Van Allen Belt to answer that question for you. There are two answers, in fact. Yes if there's enough money in it and No if there isn't.

American TV is Terrorist Taunt

No one on planet Earth is going to say it, so the People of Pluto will say it for you. The real cause of this millennium's terrorist attacks on the American home front, past or future, is not political or religious in nature as believed. The attacks are merely in response to American television, especially TV ads for food. When half of a planet's population eats a bowl of rice for supper or eats bugs or sucks stones while the other half dances the jig while sucking down burgers and pizza, the starving masses become the horrified masses and invariably lash out. But who's going to turn off their TV and think about that for a moment?

Bird Flu "Who's Who"

Our lips are sealed for now, but most Plutonians recognize at a glance that Earth's bird flu epidemic is as man-made as the twentieth century's AIDS epidemic on that planet, a sad but true fact that those who really control planet Earth will never admit. We on Pluto don't spend our spare time pondering esoteric biogenic theories, playing racial and lifestyle trump cards or conducting band-aid research when the high and mighty among us go on a genocidal rampage while singing the Plutonian version of "We Are The World". We just shut down their labs, execute the guilty and try to make it up to the innocent masses we overlooked and failed to protect. But then, we've always had Earth's sad examples from which to learn our lessons.

Backhand-of-the-Month

Without fanfare, the Observer awards the Plutonian Backhand-of-the-Month award for July to the Pentagon for daring to try members of the U.S. military for war crimes such as murder in Iraq and Afghanistan. If their Commander-in-Chief can send thousands of them to desert hot spots to quell all evil and fend for themselves in the process, then he can take the rap along with them. Or else simply admit that the U.S. made a big mistake two years ago when it went out looking for WMD's instead of enemy POW's.